Program Objectives & Overview

CMA Exam Review:

Becker's approach to CMA Review focuses on deep understanding and retention versus rote memorization so you can focus your studying - and score high on your exams. The CMA Exam Review Course has two parts, which include online lectures, course textbooks and access to over 3,000 multiple-choice questions.

Morgan offers the CMA exam review courses in the following study formats for both business to business and business to consumer channels:

- Live (applicable in specific cities) – The live classroom format offers a structured schedule and live personal interaction with instructors and peers. Students can ask questions, get study tips and instructor support, along with accessing all the study tools available in the self-study software.
- Live Online – Morgan's Live Online course lectures provide the same structured schedule and real-time access to instructors, but in a virtual classroom format available anywhere in the world with reliable internet access
- Self-Study– All CMA purchases include a license to access to Becker's self-study online course software. The self-study online format provides a totally portable, multimedia-based format with recorded lectures, multiple choice questions, simulations, and practice exams.

Morgan's CMA Exam Review courses are not required to be eligible to take the CMA exam. While students may opt to complete all available course modules, this program is designed to help students identify and focus on areas where supplemental study will increase likelihood of passing the CMA exam. Therefore, Morgan does not issue course grades, track academic progress nor award a degree or diploma at course completion.
